

PEACE NEGOTIATIONS MEET INTERRUPTION

TWO TURKISH ENVOYS TAKE HURRIED LEAVE AFTER LESS THAN AN HOUR'S SESSION TODAY.

ADJOURN UNTIL LATER

Necessity of Securing New Instructions From Home Government Given As Reason for Adjournment.

London, Dec. 19.—The peace plenipotentiaries representing the Balkan states and the Turkish empire assembled at four o'clock this afternoon. They had not met since Tuesday when an adjournment was taken for the purpose of permitting the Ottoman representatives to communicate with their government at Constantinople on the subject of the admission of the Greek delegates to the conference.

The peace plenipotentiaries were in session today for only about three quarters of an hour. Then Reche Pasha and Salih Pasha hurriedly left the palace and went to their hotel. They refused to give reporters any information.

Turks Await Orders. It was later announced that the peace conference had adjourned until Friday or Saturday afternoon. The Turkish delegates state that they are not yet in possession of full instructions from their government which have been dispatched from Constantinople by special courier and that the conference had decided it must await their arrival and consequently adjourned.

The new credentials awaited by the Turks are necessitated by changes in their instruction regarding negotiations with the Greek delegates.

It is thought here that should Turkey carry her point in regard to re-occupying the garrison of Adrianople it would imply that the possession of that foreign ultimatum would remain with the Turks.

May Need Mediation. As the question of Greek participation in the peace conference shall have been settled it is possible the demands of the allies will be unfolded and a crucial stage will have been reached when the good offices of the powers may be needed.

Without outside mediation it appears impossible now to bridge the gulf dividing the minimum demands of the allied Balkan nations and the maximum offer of the Turks if these demands and the offers are to be accepted at their face value.

Greek Throws Bombs. Paris, Dec. 19.—A veritable hail of bombs was thrown into the Turkish fortress of Jenina by a Greek military airman and an accompanying comrade, who yesterday flew over the city in an aeroplane according to official advice received here. The air man whose name was Moutoussis took a large supply of bombs with him in his biplane and he and the Greek officer with him hurled these explosive missiles down into the principal buildings to which they caused serious damage. The population was terrorized.

All is Ready.

Arrested this morning on a charge of stealing coal from the People's Coal company of this city and selling it on Dec. 11, Charles Lawrence, aged 15, was arraigned in municipal court this morning, but denied his guilt, saying it was his brother who had taken the coal. Action against the young man therefore was dismissed, and a warrant and complaint on the same charge made out against Ray Lawrence, aged 13, the brother implicated by the younger man. The older boy was brought into municipal court shortly after two o'clock this afternoon, and the case was adjourned until tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock. Bail in the sum of $200 for the young man's appearance was furnished by his mother, Mrs. Mary Lawrence, 1014 Western avenue, and his brother-in-law.

It is alleged the coal, Indian black, a soft coal, was thrown from a cart standing on a public track from which the cars were unloaded into the company's shed.

The above paragraph contains the charges laid against the present city administration as reasons for its recall. We accept the issue thereby presented and in meeting it stand squarely upon the record we have made in the administration of the city government. We have sought to conduct the affairs of this city economically, justly and in the interest of all its citizens. ## FINDS BEET SUGAR POISONOUS TO BEES

University Professor Declares Large Percent of Bees That Died Last Year Starved on Beet Sugar.

Madison, Wis., Dec. 19.—That beet sugar is fatal to bees and cane sugar is not in the conclusion of Prof. J. G. Saunders of the department of entomology, University of Wisconsin, who next semester will have charge of a new beekeepers' course at that institution. Of the 40 percent of the bees of the state which died last year a large percent were starved, he says. He believes that bees can live on cane sugar but die at once if fed on beet sugar. The danger to bees in beet sugar, he believes, arises from some chemical constituent that makes it deleterious. He said the time is coming when an investigation will be made and indicated he would not be surprised if beet sugar was found to be harmful to human beings. He said that people have paid too much attention to the growing of cattle and hogs and their diseases, and have not taken up the problem of food products in their effect on human beings.

ACCUSED HOCKIN OF DOUBLE DEALING IN THE ALLEGED PLOT

Union Official Called "Iago of Dynamite Conspiracy" By Special Assistant District Attorney In Plea to Jury.

Indianapolis, Dec. 19.—Stories which the government charges Herbert S. Hockin told while acting as "the Iago of the dynamite conspiracy" were related by Special Assistant District Attorney James W. Noel in continuing his argument to the jury at the trial of the forty accused "bomb plotters" today.

"In betraying all with whom he had to deal Hockin never told the same story twice," said Mr. Noel. "He told a Pittsburgh contractor about a hiding place for nitro-glycerine because he, Hockin, said he was opposed to wholesale murder and the explosive was to be used to blow up a passenger train. He told W. J. Burns he was giving information about explosives because, he, Hockin, was afraid McNamara was running the iron workers' union. "Still this man, the Iago of the conspiracy, whispering a different story in each new ear was one of the originators of the scheme to blow up non-union jobs by dynamite. He was ambitious and wanted to get out of the way those who were opposed to him." Orville E. McNamara and J. B. McNamara had complained that Hockin was withholding part of the $200 fee allowed for each explosion. The dynamiters were about to ditch him so Hockin decided to betray them."

Then the rebels forced their way in, burned many of the buildings in the town and committed every kind of outrage. Some hours later reinforcements of federal troops arrived and drove the rebels out after killing a large number of them."

OLEOMARGARINE LAW BENEFITS POOR MAN

Commissioner Emery Points to Good Quality and Reasonable Price of Product Owing to Wisconsin Law.

Madison, Wis., Dec. 19.—The drastic butter and oleomargarine laws of Wisconsin and their strict enforcement by the dairy and food commission have resulted in bringing oleomargarine to the table of the poor man at a price much less than the almost prohibitive rate for butter. This is the conclusion deduced from Commissioner J. Q. Emery's annual report issued this week, wherein he estimates the saving for 1910 at $255,493.

Formerly oleomargarine sold in Wisconsin was colored and retailed as butter at the same price as butter. Being a chemical substitute closely allied with natural butter, it came to be distinguished in taste from the natural product. Only by its lighter color can the difference be noted, as a rule.

For fourteen years, or until 1895, the legislature attempted to stop the sale of the product as butter, but was unsuccessful. In that year the sale was made legal when it was left uncolored, and a vigorous campaign to this end was begun by Commissioner H. C. Adams, and has been followed up by Commissioner Emery. The price of oleomargarine immediately dropped.

In his report Mr. Emery says: "Under the Wisconsin law as now enforced the laboring man or any other man who wants oleomargarine can now get it and at oleomargarine prices. And if he wants butter he is practically sure to get butter and not oleomargarine at butter prices." It is estimated that the price of oleo in 1910 was 10 cents a pound less than that of butter and that the 2,554,938 pounds sold in Wisconsin that year saved the consumers $255,493, an amount five and one-half times the cost of maintaining the dairy and food commission.

DENIES POSSIBILITY OF A "MONEY TRUST"

J. PIERPONT MORGAN TESTIFIES THAT NO POWER COULD MONOPOLIZE MONEY AND CREDITS.

FAVORS COMBINATION

In All Case Where it is Possible and Even Agrees That "Voting Trusts" Exist in Corporation Directorates.

Washington, Dec. 19.—"There could be no money trust. All banks and all the money powers in Christendom could not control money. The question of control is personal as to money and credits," declared J. Pierpont Morgan today to the house money trust investigating committee. The financier was led up to his answer by the questioning of Samuel Untermyer, counsel for the committee who asked Mr. Morgan if he did not feel his vast power.

Prefers Combination. Mr. Morgan answered that he did not admit he had vast power and did not feel it. Once when the lawyer and the witness got into a discussion of competition and combination, Mr. Morgan said, "I'd rather have combination than competition. I like a little competition, but I like combination better. Control is the important thing. Without it you can't do a thing but no man could monopolize money. One man might get control of railroads or merchandise, but never money and credits."

Becomes Emphatic. Mr. Morgan's declaration that there "could be no money trust," emphasized by a vigorous bang with his fist on the arm of his chair, came toward the end of the committee's morning session at which the financier testified as to the relations of the house of Morgan with several great corporations. Mr. Morgan testified that he had approved the price of which the subsidiaries of the United States steel corporation were taken into the big corporation. Mr. Untermyer asked if he had not named the board of directors of the United States Steel corporation, but Mr. Morgan said he only said he might have decide who should not go on.

His holding of certain bank stocks he characterized as "not very much, about a million dollars." When a laugh went round the financier joined in heartily. Once when his voice got hoarse his daughter, Mrs. Herbert L. Satterlee, gave him a throat tablet.

May Finish Today. The principal part of Mr. Morgan's testimony on the combination of money and credits, was heard this morning at the afternoon session. It was expected his testimony would be ended today.

Mr. Morgan surrounded by nearly a dozen of his partners and attorneys answered all questions with apparent freedom. He agreed that through "voting trusts" several of which existed in his company a few trustees could name the directors who in turn would name the officers of great interstate industrial or railroad corporations. Mr. Morgan denied, however, that he believed interlocking directorates where two three men held directorships in several banks, trust companies or corporations could bring about control and a unity of action.

Can Control Banking. He declared that without a majority on the board such men could not dictate affairs or control the corporations. The financier took issue with Mr. Untermyer as to the opportunity offered a few men to control general banking conditions through such participation as Morgan & Company have on the boards of directors on the leading banks of New York.

The officers in charge here have the names of a number of families for whom they will furnish supplies to make the holiday a pleasant one, but they desire that persons knowing of other needy families to telephone to the Army headquarters, 756 Red on the Rock county telephone being the number. The kettles will be distributed at the hall on Christmas morning except in a few cases where members of the families are unable to come to the hall.

MRS. W. M'VICAR DIED THIS MORNING

Mrs. Minnie McVicar, wife of William McVicar, died at 4:30 o'clock this morning at her home, 610 South Main street. She had been ill for a week with a serious intestinal ailment, but last night her physician reported that she was gaining strength and it was hoped that she was on the way to recovery. The immediate cause of her death was an attack of heart failure.

Mrs. McVicar was born in Janesville, November 23, 1872, being the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Griffin. She was married on May 4, 1890, to William McVicar, and has always made her home in this city. She was a member of the Presbyterian church and of the Order of the Easter Star, being a faithful and devoted worker in both organizations. Her acquaintance was large and the news of her death brings sorrow to many besides the members of the bereaved family.

Surviving Mrs. McVicar are her husband, two children, Garnet and Marcia McVicar, and two sisters, Mrs. Frank Palmer of this city, and Mrs. John Nicholson of Beloit. Funeral services will be conducted at the home, 610 South Main street, at 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon by the Rev. J. W. Laughlin, pastor of the First Presbyterian church. Interment will be made in Oak Hill cemetery.

The sympathy of their many friends are extended to the sorrowing husband and children.

CONGRESSMEN BEGIN HOLIDAY VACATION

Senate Remains in Session, However, for Purpose of Confirming Appointments.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Washington, Dec. 19.—The house today adjourned for the Christmas holiday recess until January 2, without receiving President Taft's message. The message, however, was sent to the senate which remained in session.

The senate, before the message was delivered to it, went into executive session to consider President Taft's appointment, confirmation of which had been held up by the democrats. The result of the session was one confirmation, that of John H. Brown, as postmaster at Concord, N. H.

Then the senate went into session as a court of impeachment to continue the trial of Judge Archbold of the commerce court. If the senate does not receive the message today it will go over until January 2nd and in the meantime cannot be published.

William Driscoll and Otto Buege, classed as old offenders, were this morning arraigned in municipal court on charges of drunkenness. Driscoll was given a ten days' sentence in jail without fine, while Buege, being unable to pay a fine of $10 and costs, went down for twenty days. John Clark was also arraigned on the same charge, but pleaded not guilty, and his trial was set for two o'clock this afternoon.

Clark was again brought into court this afternoon at two o'clock and the charge against him was dismissed, he agreeing to go to work and to leave liquor alone.

Louis Daly.
Last services for Louis Daly were conducted at St. Patrick's church at nine o'clock this morning. The Rev. Father Mahoney celebrated requiem mass. Those acting as pall bearers were James and Thomas Stock, Thomas Mackin, William O'Brien, Joe Sullivan and Thomas Leahy. A large number of friends of the deceased and his kin were present at the funeral and there were many beautiful floral tributes.

False and Still Alarms: The fire department was called out at 11:45 this morning in answer to a false alarm from Box 56 at the corner of Pearl and Pleasant streets. A still alarm this afternoon was sent in from the home of Bert Dorn, at the corner of Eastern avenue and Jerome street. Children playing with matches set fire to a bed but the blaze was well under control when the department arrived.

HOW TO JUDGE A DIAMOND

First look at the color—the whiter the better—then look for the brilliancy. This depends on the perfect cutting. If cut too thin the ray of light entering the center will escape, if too thick the light ray is reflected from facet to facet but is not thrown out from the top. Perfect cutting is the reason why some stones are more brilliant than others of the same color and weight. It is the knowledge of all these qualities and the combination of qualities that determines the value of diamonds and makes the diamond expert. Don't buy a diamond that is not white. Don't buy a diamond that has flaws and carbon spots. Don't buy a diamond because it is cheap, as its low price must indicate imperfections. Our many years' experience in handling diamonds has allowed us to glean the knowledge which has built up our diamond trade to its present proportions. We have received today another package of stones and would be pleased to show you, if interested.

BY C. A. VOIGHT.

A conference will be held at the Yale club in New York city about January 1, at which Capt. Ketcham of the 'Elf eleven' will get the advice and counsel of all the former captains and coaches for twenty years back. Some radical changes in Yale's coaching system will be discussed. Preliminary plans for the coaching work at Yale in 1913 will be made during the holiday season.

Tip O'Neil, the president of the Western league, is the friend of young men who are ambitious to become league umpires. Like all magnates he gets many applications for jobs as arbiters. Instead of ignoring the letters entirely, he writes back asking the ambitious ones to submit their terms.

"Why do I ask them their terms?" queried Tip. "It's the way. I guess they are all nice fellows and if they really want to be umpires it's not for me to find fault. I never pay any more attention to them, but that letter in which I asked their terms helps them along with other league presidents. You see, they can show my letter and say, 'That Western league has asked me for my price, but I'd rather umpire in your league.' And Mr. Man gets a job. See, how it works."

Two Californians, Maurice E. McLaughlin and T. C. Bundy, have been officially recognized by the U. S. Lawn Tennis association as the best tennis players in this country. McLaughlin is given first in the singles, while in the doubles he and Bundy lead all the rest.

WILL NOT HAVE ATHLETIC FRATERNITY AT MADISON

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.) Madison, Dec. 19.—Wisconsin will not have a chapter of Sigma Delta Phi, the honorary athletic fraternity which was agitated by several members of the "big nine" in a conference, according to Director George W. Ehler. The reason advanced by Ehler for not establishing a chapter here is that the requirements for membership are not such that will determine whether a person is a physically developed man according to the Wisconsin ideal.

the drab reality of the home life and domestic surroundings just fall heir to a baseball team if she is looking for a career," recently remarked Mrs. Helen Britton, owner of the St. Louis Cardinals. "Before I became possessed of this 'white elephant' I thought everybody was kind and that good nature and honesty were to be found everywhere among men. I know better now. I have found to what degree of meanness men will go to take advantage of women. I have found how little chivalry and loyalty there can be in some men."

Fighting is still a profitable employment in New York city. Here are the receipts of four recent boxing bouts there:

K. O. Brown-Matt Wells	$27,800
McFarland-Matt Wells	26,000
McGoorty-Gibbons	23,441
K. O. Brown-Ad Volgast	19,960

Total $97,201
Under the New York law 5 per cent of the receipts of each bout goes into the state treasury.

The Fort Wayne club of the Central league has purchased southpaw pitcher Tommy Atkins from the Atlanta club of the Southern league.

Johnny Evers, new manager of the Chicago Cubs, thinks the New York Giants will be the team to watch next year. "I don't think the Giants are any stronger than Pittsburgh—maybe not as strong," says Evers, "but any time you beat McGraw you have got to have a team 25 per cent stronger. He can do more with an ordinary team than any other man in the world."

MAKE BEST SHOWING IN MINOR LEAGUES

Former Major League Players Have Highest Percentages for Fielding and Bunting.

Chicago, Dec. 19.—Former major league base ball players stand out prominently among the leading pitchers and fielders of American Association, according to the official averages for the season of 1912 issued today by Thomas M. Chivington, president of the organization.

Two former Cleveland pitchers, Krause and Falkenberg, of Toledo, head the pitching list. Krause's name appears first with thirteen victories and four defeats, giving him an average of .700. It was his remarkable showing with Toledo which caused him to be returned to Cleveland in mid-season. His second entrance to the major league was marked by a string of defeats, however. Although Falkenberg is named second on the official list, he was the real league leader with twenty-five victories and eight defeats, a percentage of .758. Falkenberg was with Washington before he went to Cleveland. This was "Cy's" first year in the minors since he left the American league.

Packard, a Columbus pitcher, suffered the same number of defeats as Falkenberg, but won one less so he finished third with a mark of .750.

Rieger, of St. Paul, led the pitchers in fielding having a clean record in twenty-five games. He accepted fifty-one chances. "Rube" Waddell's name tops the list. He fielded 816.

Among the first basemen, Jones of Milwaukee, the old American league player, took first honors, making only twenty-six errors in 150 games and establishing a percentage of .984. Delahanty of Minneapolis, set a mark of .995 but he participated in only twenty-two games.

Otto Williams, who has been in the association for many years, topped the second basemen with a mark of .970 for 145 games. Rockenfield, of Kansas City, who will be seen in the Western league this year, made a percentage of .979, but he was in only twenty-eight games.

Eddie Lenoxx, who started the season with the Chicago Nationals, went to Louisville and finished in Kansas City—fielded .955 at third base in eighty-six games. Westcott of Indianapolis, set a mark of .963 in nineteen games.

accepted 387 chances and set a mark of .979, so he probably should be regarded as the leading outfielder.

Fielding honors in the catching department belong to Owens, who used to pitch in the American league, but who worked behind the bat last season for Minneapolis. In 136 games he made only fourteen errors, setting a mark of .988. Ray Schalk, who came to the Chicago American from Milwaukee, made seven errors in eighty games and is credited with a percentage of .985.

The Indianapolis club fielded .955 as a team and lead the league, making it evident that they were weak in the batting department else they might have finished higher in the pennant race. Other teams fielded as follows: Columbus .953; Toledo .952; Minneapolis .951; St. Paul .951; Louisville .950; Kansas City .948; Milwaukee .947.

PERSONAL JOURNALISM.

All self-respecting and intelligently conducted newspapers, discover, early in their career, that their mission is to publish the news, free from bias, and to avoid personalities. Papers of this class know nothing about personal grievances, and while they may have some enemies, as all papers have which amount to anything, they never retaliate, in a personal way.

You may call a man a liar, when you meet him face to face, or, lacking the courage, you may express the same sentiment over the wire, at long distance, but such declarations never look well in cold type, and no publisher indulges in them.

In dealing with public men and public measures, the fact should always be remembered that a man's public life belongs to the public, and is open to either commendation or criticism, as the case may demand.

The preacher is a public character. He preaches to a handful of people Sunday after Sunday, and is always glad to see his sermons in print, because in this way they reach a larger audience.

The same conditions apply to men in public life, who are serving the people, and so it happens that their speeches and writings are sent out broadcast to the press of the country. If they make mistakes, they are freely advertised, and there is no cause for complaint, because they are held accountable by a wide constituency.

When a man enters politics, he aspires to be a public servant, and the public has a right to know what he stands for, and what policy he proposes to pursue. The press is expected to furnish this kind of information, because it has the means of publicity, and is the only medium which can satisfy the demand.

The press has a right to discuss public men or aspirants for public office, not as private citizens, but as public characters, and what they represent, and this sometimes leads to confusion, because men do not always make the distinction referred to.

A man may be a good citizen, but so totally lacking in the qualifications necessary to intelligent public service as to be a menace to public welfare. Or he may stand for policies which are detrimental. In either case the press has a perfect right to deal with him as a public character.

It is an old saying that a man never knows how mean he is, until he runs for office, and it usually happens that his weaknesses come to the surface. There are plenty of good men in the city today, who would like to serve the city as commissioners—men whose characters are above reproach, and who have nothing to fear in the way of publicity—but the issue staggers them, and they are not ready to array themselves against law and order.

They are wise in their decision, because the issue is a fruitful topic, open to liberal discussion, both by the press and platform, and public sentiment is strongly arrayed on the side of law.

THE FIGHT IS ON.

The filing of the recall petition, and the selecting of candidates to succeed the present commissioners, introduces the second act in the drama which has entertained the city for the past few weeks. The result of the campaign will determine whether or not the majority of voters favor a wide open town.

The long list of names signed to the petitions, indicates that more than a respectable minority are dissatisfied with the enforcement of law. These seven hundred men have expressed their sentiments, and will vote accordingly, and men in sympathy with them will rally to their support on election day.

Against this element is arrayed the forces who believe in law and order, and they must realize, at the opening of the campaign, that this belief will amount to nothing, unless it becomes an active force, for the issue involved is the most vital issue ever presented to the city.

The forces which seek to legalize lawlessness, through the non-enforcement of law, will work together as a unit, and unless the forces opposed adopt the same policy, and assume personal responsibility, the outcome may be doubtful.

The issue is simply a question of law or lawlessness and all efforts to begot it will be futile. The personnel of the present commission, or of the candidates selected to succeed it, has nothing to do with it. If John C. Nichols and the two men associated with him were preachers, it would in no way affect the issue. They would represent the same constituency, and would be entitled to no other support. The fight being waged is not on the present commission, but on public sentiment, which demands the enforcement of law, without fear or favor, and it is well for the city that the issue is now squarely before the people, for the sooner the question is settled the better for all concerned.

It is high time to know which element is in control. The vote on adopting the commission form of government was a rebuke to the wide open town sentiment, but other issues were involved. Today the lines are closely drawn on the single issue, and the outcome is not a question of doubt. If every law-respecting man realizes its importance and performs his duty.

OUR NATIONAL HONOR.

It must be reassuring to any real lover of his country, jealous of his country's honor, to note the unanimity of the reputable newspapers in condemning the attitude of congress in the matter of the Panama Canal tolls. Those newspapers which get their information at first hand and without prejudice, studying the question on its merits, and declining to admit for a moment that a bargain can be repudiated because it is a bad bargain, are a unit on the question. There is nothing abstruse, or beyond the comprehension of the intelligent layman, and the position can be simply summarized.

Under the Clayton-Bulwer treaty Great Britain was entitled to share with us in the building or ownership of any canal on any part of the Isthmus of Panama, whether the strip was owned by us or anybody else. This right to joint ownership was abrogated by the Hay-Pauncefote treaty; and for the surrender of her rights Great Britain was granted the concession that all vessels should be treated alike, our own and those of every other nation. This was the condition of the supersession of the previous treaty. Great Britain did not give us something for nothing, but something for a most definite consideration, as the United States senate recognized, in its consideration of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty, when it voted down Senator Bard's amendment to exempt our coastwise shipping from tolls, by 43 votes to 27.

This country does not own the strip through which the Panama Canal runs, absolutely, but only with a string to it, called the Hay-Pauncefote treaty. Even when Mr. Roosevelt put his principles in his pocket and cut the Gordian knot by, as he says, "taking" what he wanted, he did not abrogate the treaty. The subsequent treaty made with the new Republic of Panama specifically recognized that the Hay-Pauncefote treaty was still in force. This country has not a leg to stand on; but if it insists on defending the lawsuit it has legislated, at least our honor should not be dragged in the mud by repudiation of our arbitration treaty with Great Britain.

The concessions made in Sir Edward Grey's studiously moderate remonstrance save our face. The duty of the senate now is to repeal the indefensible clause exempting our coastwise shipping from tolls. A maintenance of the present position, and the declaration, in effect, that we dare not arbitrate, would leave us stripped before the civilized world without the slightest rag of self-respect to cover our shame.

This is a plain statement of facts, from the Wall Street Journal, concerning the Panama situation, and congress will do well to consider them before enacting hasty legislation. The new waterway, when completed, will be a great credit to American engineering and enterprise, but the territory is neutral, and treaty obligations are of supreme importance. The great object of the canal is not to make money, but to put the nations of the world in closer touch through the medium of a world's highway. International peace and prosperity go hand in hand, and obligations, whether written or implied, should be regarded sacred.

Perhaps Wilson has his cabinet all decided on, but there are some mighty anxious democrats throughout the country who would like to know what that decision really is.

McGovern says he will have his message to the Wisconsin legislature ready when it convenes. The contractors are also making haste to have the senate chamber ready for that august body about the same time.

So the waterworks is going to be an issue after all. Well, it is going to be a surprise for some people when the truth and nothing but the truth is told on this interesting subject.

The republican political leaders may like the income tax law, but the people who have to pay it are confident it is more iniquitous than they really ever realized now they come to pay it.

When you have anything to sell let the people know it through the want ads

Stop That Cough In A Minute

Would you give morphine or chloroform to your baby or take it yourself? Of course not. Yet most patent cough cures contain one or both. They stop a cough in a minute, which is dangerous. A cough should be cured internally by healing the lungs, loosening the phlegm, throwing it out, which is done by coughing. Badger Cough Balsam does not contain morphine or chloroform. It is made by percolation from bloodroot, lobelia, pine bark, wild cherry, etc. It cures a cough in a few days without filling the lungs with poisonous phlegm. The irritation is relieved, the lungs healed without danger of pneumonia. It's safe for children or old people. Get a bottle today for 25 cents. Badger Cough Balsam is made by Mr. Pfennig, our Graduate Pharmacist and Chemist. Badger Drug Co., Milwaukee and River Sts.

STUDENTS TO ENJOY HOLIDAY VACATION

Two Weeks' Recess From School Duties Will Begin Tomorrow Afternoon.

The high school students and also the pupils of the grades are looking forward to the holiday vacation which begins tomorrow. The year provides for a much longer recess than is usually enjoyed. With Christmas coming on a Wednesday it is necessary for the schools to close on the preceding Friday. It is also noticed that New Years comes on Wednesday, thus making it possible to extend the vacation over until the 6th of January. The total number of days to be vacation days is 19. This is the longest vacation in years. The reason for not having school next Monday and Tuesday is for the fact that the furnaces would have to be started up again, and the same thing with one week from next Wednesday. Among the high school students who will profit by this vacation are the members of the debating teams, who are about two weeks or more behind in their work. They expected to have their speeches in for correction by last week, so that they might have them returned to them by this week, allowing them to master them before school opens on January 6th. The first outside debate will come sometime in January, with the local affirmative team at Beloit and the local negative team meeting the line city affirmative team here on the same night.

JANESVILLE IS TO RECALL OFFICIALS IS THE DECISION?

PETITION WITH THIS IN VIEW
FILED AND CANDIDATES
NOMINATED AT MASS
MEETING.

MASS MEETING HELD

John C. Nichols, Peter J. Mouat and D. B. Clark Nominated as Opposition Candidates.

Janesville is to have a recall election within the next sixty days. This was the decision reached by the committee of twelve, of the recall element yesterday and shortly after five last evening the petitions forty-three in number, containing, it is said over seven hundred names, were filed with the city clerk.

Then the committee of twelve went a step farther and at the mass meeting held last evening placed in nomination, three men as candidates against Mayor Paterson, Councilmen Cummings and Milburn. The city clerk will canvass the names and if they are in legal form, a special election will be called within the next sixty days.

The announcement was made at the recall meeting in Eagles' hall, of the ticket selected by the committee of twelve, heading the movement for the recall, and unanimous endorsement of the candidates selected was given by acclamation as each name was announced, and of the three by a rising vote.

The candidates of the recall movement, as selected by the committee of twelve are John C. Nichols for mayor; P. J. Mouat and Dr. D. B. Clark for councilmen. The meeting was presided over by John C. Nichols, and speeches were made by Mr. Nichols, R. R. Lay, P. J. Mouat, Dr. D. B. Clark and John L. Fisher. About one hundred and twenty-five men were in attendance.

In opening the meeting Mr. Nichols spoke briefly of the work of the committee of twelve in selecting the candidates, saying that they had worked diligently to pick the candidates to serve the best interests of the city, and had considered the qualifications of several applicants and had gone to some men whom they thought would be desirable men to place on the ticket. The decision of the committee with regard to the three selected, he said, was unanimous. He then called on R. R. Lay, one of the members of the committee to make the first announcement.

Before announcing the decision of the committee with regard to the candidate for mayor, Mr. Lay stated that the recall movement was a movement for better government, government for the people or for a certain people take part and it was up to the people to decide if they desired government for the people or for a certain portion of the people. When the names of seven hundred men are placed on papers saying that they are not satisfied with the government, he said, then it must be taken that the people are not suited. The candidate for mayor chosen by the committee, he said, was a man that was a fighter, and an honest man, and an honest man is next to the angels. "When I mention his name," said Mr. Lay, "you will say, 'There's a man.' A man to lead Janesville out of captivity."

Continuing in the praise of the candidate, Mr. Lay stated that Mr. Nichols as mayor had done more than any three men before him, but that his power had been usurped just as he (Dr. Nichols) was about to bring the city into sunlight. He also spoke of Mr. Nichols as a workman who had risen from the ranks in spite of the opposition of manufacturers who had tried to choke him.

Mr. Nichols made a few remarks of gratification at receiving an expression of favor from the gathering, and spoke briefly of his work in the city, both in the business world, and as mayor. "You know what I tried to do for the city," he said, "and you have to give me credit for something I have done."

Mr. Nichols was placed in nomination as the choice of the meeting as a candidate for mayor by R. R. Lay, and at Mr. Lay's request, the motion was submitted to a vote by John L. Fisher. The name of P. J. Mouat as a candidate for councilman selected by the committee was announced by Mr. Lay, who eulogized Mr. Mouat as "an old warhorse, well tried out, and ready to take the traces again." He asked that Mr. Mouat be supported and moved the Mr. Mouat be nominated as commissioner. The vote on the motion was declared unanimous.

Mr. Mouat expressed his thanks to Mr. Lay, the committee and those present for their endorsement, and said that he believed that the city should be run on business principles, and not as a kindergarten; and in a sane, lawful manner. The saloon men of the city, he said, are just as good as can be found anywhere, and the city has fine churches, ministers and schools. Referring to the statement of a Madison paper that social conditions here are rotten, he said no better society could be found than in this city. He said it elected he would do his utmost to bring the city where it ought to be.

Dr. D. B. Clark was then announced as a candidate by Mr. Lay, as the best man in Janesville he had ever seen, and further words of praise for the candidates were spoken, the usual nomination proceedings following. Dr. Clark expressed his appreciation and briefly outlined what he would endeavor to do if elected, stating his platform would be announced later.

A rising vote on the three candidates was asked for by Mr. Lay to give the endorsement of the meeting to those selected.

Mr. Nichols announced that he did not stand for lawlessness or a wide open town, but a regulated city, with equal rights to all, and special privileges to none. He also said he stood for the manufacturing interests of the city, and that the manufacturing interests, not the saloon interests make the town. The city officers, he said, he believed should assist to build up the manufacturing interests, and he discussed the relation of the manufacturer ing interests to the prosperity of the city.

As to being the saloon candidate, he said: "Jack Nichols is the saloon candidate as far as the saloon obey the law as the people want it obeyed." He also went into a discussion of the dissatisfaction shown by the present administration and concluded his remarks with an appeal for the support of the entire recall ticket.

John L. Fisher was called upon by the chairman to express his views of the movement, and gave a hearty endorsement to it and to the men selected as candidates. His reasons for dissatisfaction with the administration, he expressed in a criticism of the condition of the street on Milwaukee avenue, which he discussed quite fully. He said that when the issue comes to vote, it will be found that some people besides the saloonkeepers are interested, and that some people do not think the commission has made good.

He expressed the opinion that he had been opposed to commission government because he did not believe the commission could have saved their salaries, and said that there were more vacant houses in the city today than ever before in the thirteen years he has lived here. He said the unfavorable advertising of the city had kept people away, and that he knew the city had been better the past summer than at any time during the six years he was district attorney.

Further remarks with regard to the recall movement by both Mr. Nichols and Mr. Lay, and the question of the purchase of the water works was raised. Mr. Nichols said that as mayor he had advocated the purchase of the water works plant, and that if elected, he would see that the city purchased the plant, if anyone could be secured to float the bonds for the purchase.

What He Knew About Birds.

A little scholar in one of the lower grades of a grammar school wrote this as a composition about "birds." "What is a bird. Birds is a nice thing to see and a nice thing to hear them singing specially in the spring time when they commence to sing. It is a lively thing two here. What is the first thing that the birds commencing to do in the spring, it is a nest of what is a nest made. The nest is made with straw, hay, etc., what the birds do after the nest is down. Why they lay eggs in the, and after a few weeks they have a young ones, coming out, and after a month the young ones will start out for there way."—Philadelphia Times.

TO FINISH BUILDING CHURCH IN FEBRUARY

Christian Science Congregation Hopes To Occupy Handsome New Edifice in Two Months.

The beautiful new house of worship of the Janesville Christian Science congregation will be completed and ready to occupy some time in February according to the present estimates of the builders. Finishing is being done as rapidly as is commensurate with good workmanship, and as the arrival of needed material permits. The hardwood floor will be down by some time tomorrow and the ceiling only needs a coat of paint to make the finishing complete. A tile floor will be laid in the foyer with four marble steps leading up from the outer door. There will be a cloak room on each side, doors opening into the foyer from both the auditorium and the foyer. Three large round pillars will be placed on either side of the nave, and there will be three rows of pews. The auditorium will be finished in white and mahogany. To the rear of the platform and the reader's desks will be separate rooms for the first and second readers, and a room for the directors. The partitions will be movable so that when desired the three rooms can be made into one. Room is provided at the left for the installation of a pipe organ when desired. With the exception of toilet rooms and a retiring room the basement will not be finished at the present time. A. L. Deamhammer of Beloit, is supervising the work, a foreman being in immediate charge.

WHAT REASSESSMENT COST THE CITIZENS

Nearly Twenty Seven Hundred Dollars Citizens Paid for Ill-considered Readjustment.

Taxpayers who have thus far visited the city treasurer's office to pay their taxes have been surprised at the increase in the total of their amounts. They fail to realize that the possible increase in taxes, due to the readjustment, and not paid when the 1911 taxes were paid, is now added to their total. Also that the share of each individual taxpayer of the $2,696,500 cost for the readjustment, with an additional $150 interest is also added to this year's total. It is interesting to note just where this money was paid and to whom. A letter from A. J. Myrland, secretary of the tax commission, received by a local business man, answers this question and is published below:

Dear Sir:

Yours of December 7 is at hand and in reply to the same will say that the following statement is the amount charged against the city of Janesville for reassessment:

L. P. Jerrard, 42 days at $5.00,	210.00
W. J. Freeman, 50 days at $5.00,	250.00
H. V. Cowles, 91 days at $5.00,	455.00

TO THE PUBLIC.

This appeal is issued in the interest of the movement for the preservation of the old cemeteries of Wisconsin, a movement initiated by the Waukesha County Historical society, and for which we desire to secure the sympathy and co-operation of every man, woman and child in the state.

The old cemeteries, where lie the bodies of the pioneers of Wisconsin—those who braved the hardships of the early days and laid firmly and substantially the foundations of this great state—are not receiving the attention to which they are entitled from us, their descendants. Some of them are vacated to make way for business or agriculture. Some are in a pitiable state of neglect and decay. From some such bodies as could be located have been removed, but in an undertaking of this kind, some are doubtless always missed.

The remains of the pioneers are entitled to more respect than this. There is land enough in this country—let us keep the old cemeteries intact. Let us build up a public sentiment that will prevent the neglect or abandonment of these old, resting places, a sentiment from which may ultimately come legislation designed to protect them.

We should remember that these old burial places are landmarks of local history, worthy of preservation from this point of view alone.

We earnestly request your personal co-operation and that of any society in which you may be interested in this effort to preserve the burying grounds of the pioneers of Wisconsin.

JULIA A. LAPHAM, Secretary.

CHRISTMAS SPIRIT SHOWN IN LETTERS

Little Friends of Santa Claus Have Written Him Many Interesting Letters.

There is nothing in childhood days that so holds the hearts and minds of the little people as do the letters written each year to Santa Claus. Old Santa, the delight of the fathers and mothers of today in their childhood, older than the memory of man runs, is still making his yearly pilgrimage to the homes of his little friends. In Saturday's issue of the Gazette many of these letters will be published. Some have a touch of pathos in them, some are merry and happy, but all show the faith of childhood in their dear old friend.

Dr. Wm. Sadler, author of "The Cause and Cure of Colds," says that common colds should be taken seriously, especially when they hang on. Foley's Honey and Tar Compound is a reliable household medicine for coughs and colds, equally effective for children and for grown persons. Take it when you feel a cold coming on. It will avert danger of serious results and cure quickly. Mrs. N. C. Young, Pegasus, Ga., says: "Foley's Honey and Tar Compound completely cleared my throat and cured my cold." Badger Drug Co.

Theater

"THE GREAT DIVIDE," by America's youngest poet and playwright William Vaughn Moody, is the attraction scheduled at Myers Theater on Sunday December 22, matinee and evening. The severest critics of the world have lavished critical praise upon this great American play, from San Francisco to New York.

Presented the first time in this country by Henry Miller, it was played 500 times at the Princess and Daly's theaters in New York city. Heretofore attractions which have endeavored to portray the real mountain characters of the Cordilleras were plays designed for cheap sensational appeal. But "The Great Divide" is literature that will endure, while at the same time it is one of the most human plays ever produced. Complete in scenic effects, and played by an excellent cast of picked players, the production comes to us under the management of Mr. C. S. Primrose, one of the foremost of Western producers, who has in the past season furnished the West with such high class offerings as "The Thief," "Paid in Full," "The House of a Thousand Candles," etc.

MAYOR FATHERS' DISAGREES WITH SUPERIOR ATTORNEY

Holds That Credit for Payment of 1912 Taxes is to be Given for Income Tax Payment.

Mayor Fathers takes issue with the decision rendered by the city attorney of Superior that in the payment of income taxes credit must be given for the personal property taxes paid in 1911. The law specifically states, he says, that the amount to be deducted from the income tax assessment is the paid for 1912 personal property taxes. Disagreement on this question caused considerable confusion in the office of the Superior city treasurer.

A Case of Mistaken Identity—Is Your Memory as Keen as Your Eye?

In our issue next Saturday, Dec. 21, we will publish a remarkable composite illustration.

It includes 33 of the most famous faces of this age.

It offers an excellent test of the general knowledge and memory of any man, woman or child. The object of this newspaper is to ascertain just how keen is the memory of its readers.

All of the portraits in the illustration have been published so often and so extensively, that you will probably have no difficulty in recognizing all nearly all of them. However, you may find it somewhat more difficult to name them correctly than you will have in recognizing them in the instant you see the illustration. Most people remember faces readily but not names, because the impressions received by the eye are more enduring than those made on the mind or memory.

At first thought this may seem a curious statement to make, but upon reflection, you will no doubt admit that it is supported by your own daily experiences. If the fact seems curious to you, it is just because the memory of your face never fails you when eye or ear remind us, is a very common thing that it never occurred to us to think of it in just this way.

For instance, how often have you heard a familiar musical refrain, or seen a familiar face and stopped and tried your best to name it but without success? How often have you said "It's on the tip of my tongue," and how exasperated you felt because your memory proved so elusive that you simply could not name it? The illustration to be published in our next Saturday Dec. 21, constitutes an admirable means to test how well your memory serves you, and whether you often see in print but what the faces you often see in print but what is equally important—also names, or whether your memory is somewhat unreliable when put to the test, like that of the Westerner whom the late Bishop Potter met on his travels. The Bishop became conscious of the continuous staring of the man in the opposite seat until he could not suppress his curiosity any longer, so leaning across the aisle, he said, "Seems to me stranger, I've seen your picture in the papers."

"Perhaps you have," answered the genial Bishop, "my portrait is published frequently."

"Well, then," answered the Westerner, "what was you cured of?"

The portraits included in the picture to be published next Saturday, Dec. 21, however, are not those that adorn the advertisements of patent medicines. On the contrary they are all portraits of real celebrities.

Each portrait of the 33 in the illustration will be numbered.

All you need to do is to place numbers from 1 to 33 on one side of a sheet of paper, and opposite each number write the name of the portrait to which the number refers.

Then address your list to the Men-

ory Test Editor, Janesville Gazette.

(Senders of each receive from this newspaper a reserved seat ticket to girdle the globe with Lyman H. Howe at the Myers Theatre, Wednesday, Dec. 25 and Thursday Dec. 26, matinee Wednesday.)

Mr. Howe's Travel Festival has been selected as a most appropriate medium to reward senders of the twenty lists nearest correct, because Mr. Howe's scenes of world-travel make such a direct and pleasing impression on the eye that they endure much longer than they would if you merely read printed descriptions and then had to depend on an unreliable memory to recall them. Furthermore, Mr. Howe's new program is as cosmopolitan in its nature as the composite illustration to be published in our next Saturday Dec. 21.

"Paris, 'The City Beautiful,'" including the famous fountains of Versailles, all in nature's own gorgeous tints; "Our Friends, The Bees"; new studies of animal life; a thrilling adventure with a ferocious lion culminating by the king of beasts making a terrific bound for a horse which is saved only by a single well-aimed shot; an exciting race between a hydroplane and a 800 horse power motor boat; at Monte Carlo and the rivers of France in natural colors are only a few of the many features to be presented by Mr. Howe.

HOW NATURE ENABLES THE CHAMELEON TO "PLAY POSSUM."

The anatomy of the chameleon is one of the strangest things in natural history and the eye is the most curious part of it. The peculiar characteristic of the eye is not merely its form and structure but its movements. In order to enable the human eye to appreciate fully just how wonderful these movements are, the chameleon's eye in motion, while magnified 68,400 times, will be shown by Lyman H. Howe at the Myers Theatre, December 25 and 26, matinee Wednesday December 25.

An ordinary photograph could not reveal it adequately no matter how greatly it was magnified, because a "still" photograph could not reproduce the amazing movements of the chameleon's eye. Mr. Howe's reproduction shows the eye rolling in every direction, back and forth, up and down, or from whatever direction enemies might approach. It is a revelation of a very interesting bit of nature's secrets because it shows how perfectly nature has endowed the chameleon's eye in motion, while with regard to changing its colors to prevent enemies from locating it, but also by means of these revolving eyes which enable this unique creature to keep a constant "look out" for enemies without the necessity of betraying its location by turning its head. The views are a very convincing demonstration of the fact that in the realm of science and natural history, Mr. Howe's reproductions are as superior as those illustrative of travel.

An infinite variety of scenes of Paris and its environs, including the historic Palace of Versailles with its wonderful fountains and a trip along the picturesque rivers of France—all presented in the myriad hues and tints of nature; the burial of the Maine; whaling; a thrilling race between a hydroplane and a fleet of the swiftest motor boats, including the 800 horse power Ursula, and the bee industry, are only a few of the many other big features to be presented.

Control of Thoughts. Could we control our thoughts with equal facility as, say, our speech or our movements, the world would, perhaps, be a happier and certainly a calmer, place to live in. — Hubert Wales.

ADULTERATED FOOD DRIVEN FROM STATE

Dairy Commission's Report Shows
Much Work Has Been Accomplished—$3,000,000. Saved
To Dairymen.

(Special to the Gazette.)
Madison, Wis., Dec. 18.—"Food products loaded with poisons or deleterious chemical preservatives have been almost completely driven from the Wisconsin market."

"Chemical preservatives, no longer mask in the garb of jams, jellies and preserves."

"Caustic lime is no longer used to whiten lard."

"Wood alcohol is no longer found in Jamaica ginger."

"Impure essence of almond is no longer a common ingredient of ice cream."

"Boric acid and borax are no longer used to embalm fish and oysters."

These declarations of progress in Wisconsin appear in the annual report of State Dairy and Food Commissioner J. Q. Emery, made public today.

Dairyman are Benefited.

In addition to driving adulterated foods out of the state, thousands of dollars in added profits have been brought into the coffers of the dairy interests of the state, by the operation of the department, according to the report.

Commissioner Emery asserts that "the work of the department in improving the sanitary conditions of creameries, cheese factories and places where milk and cream are produced, saved to the producers of butter and cheese approximately $3,000,000 or an average of $24 for each cheese factory and creamery patron in the state."

He finds that the price of Wisconsin butter is from one cent to nearly three cents higher than that paid to butter producers in neighboring states.

"Averages of these monthly figures," continues the report, "indicate that the patrons of Wisconsin creameries received 1 1/2 cents a pound more for their butter during 1911 than did the patrons of Minnesota creameries; 2 1/2 cents more than did the patrons of Michigan creameries; and 2 1/2 cents more than did the patrons of Iowa and Illinois creameries."

Covers a Wide Scope.

Some idea of the scope of the department's work is gained by the fact that the sanitary inspection laws which it enforced extends to more than 3,000 cheese factories, creameries and skimming stations; 8,000 groceries and general stores; 2,000 meat markets; and 12,744 in 2,000 drug stores and an unknown number of other places where foods, including beverages, are manufactured.

The report shows during the last seven years there have been 1,157 convictions for violations of the dairy and food and drug and sanitary laws. There have been 393 dairy inspections; 27,000 inspections of meat markets; 13,744 inspections of groceries; etc.

The cost of the commission's operation was $48,549.33 for the year ending June 30, 1912. The annual cost of the Illinois commission in 1911 was $73,900, continues the report; of the Iowa commission, $48,000; of the Michigan commission, $40,600; of the Minnesota commission, $62,728.

As to Comparative Cost.

"The average annual cost," says Commissioner Emery, "of the commissions of the four states bordering on Wisconsin for the year 1911 was $56,075, while the cost of the dairy and food commission of Wisconsin for the same year was $48,549.32, and as above stated, this is the largest annual expenditure in the history of the commission. These figures show that the annual cost of the dairy and food commissions of the states bordering on Wisconsin was $7,525 more than the highest cost of the commission of this state."

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

POOR RELATIONS AND CHRISTMAS GIFTS.

THE Lady-Who-Always-Knows-Somewhat was engaged in embroidering a monogram on a little island of cambric completely surrounded by lace, called by courtesy a handkerchief, when the Author-Man's wife came into the room.

The Author-Man's wife condescendingly admired the handkerchief and then frankly inquired for whom it was intended as at this time of year it goes without saying that anything which one is making is intended for someone's Christmas stocking.

"That's for Julia," said the Lady-Who-Always-Knows-Somewhat.

"For Julia?" cried the Author-Man's wife. "You don't mean our washer-woman's Julia? Really? Why, don't you think it's too nice for her?"

The Lady's eyes flashed fire. "Indeed I don't think it's too nice for her," she retorted. "Why should it be?"

"Oh, I suppose she'll like it all right," said the Author-Man's wife, "but wouldn't half a dozen plain handkerchiefs or something else useful be better for her? You know they have a terribly hard time to get along."

"Yes, I know," said the Lady, "and I'm going to give her mother some money. But the way I feel about it is this. You can starve for the luxuries of life just as much as for the necessities. People always give poor folks plain, useful things, while they may need something beautiful and useless just as badly. You see I was a poor relative once myself, and I know. Most of our relatives gave us useful things; flannel petticoats and school shoes and things of that sort. But there was one aunt who used to send us each some beautiful, unnecessary thing like a silk scarf or a pair of Paris gloves or a bit of beautiful lingerie. Of course the school shoes or the flannel petticoat were more necessary, but it always seemed to me I could do without them better than I could without my lovely scarf or my long white gloves. Perhaps I'm foolish about it, but I'd rather give my poorer friends something that doesn't seem like a direct hit or their poverty, something lovely, something I'd like myself."

What do you think of the viewpoint of the Lady-Who-Always-Knows-Somewhat?

Perhaps it needs a little modifying, but it is worth considering, isn't it? For we all know that it isn't the things we need the most that we want the most; and that we can often do without the necessities better than the luxuries.

As I heard the Lady expounding her theories I remembered a gift a friend of mine once received. She was a working girl, wholly self-dependent and earning a very modest salary. One Christmas her uncle sent her $50 with the express instruction that she should get something she would not otherwise have. She bought a marvelous negligee of ashes of roses silk, and lace. An absolutely ridiculous thing for a poor working girl? I don't think you would say so if you could have seen all the happiness she got out of that one bit of the luxury which she adored. I don't think you would say so if you could have seen her face light up years afterward when she spoke of that gift.

Of course our less fortunate friends need our sensible gifts, but remember they are human and beauty loving just like other folks; even if they have made the fatal mistake of being poor, and don't be afraid to mix in a little of the frivolous too.

You don't say whether you are a girl or a boy, but I presume you are the former, for a boy would sail in and say "How-do-do" to another boy. If you know the sister, call on her when you think the brother will be around and tell her you would like to meet him.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: There is a young man I am very anxious to keep company with. One night he asked me to go out riding with him and as I am under age I was told not to stay out too late. He didn't say anything about coming back and I didn't invite him back as I didn't think it proper. He is a perfect gentleman, but rather bashful. Please tell me what to do so he will call again.

Ask your mother to invite him to Sunday night tea. Be sweet and pleasant and when he goes your mother can tell him she hopes he will come often. You could add that you hope so too.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: What can I do to keep my feet small?

L. N. C.
A well-shaped foot is more beautiful than a small squeezed-in foot. So cultivate healthy, well-shaped feet rather than small ones. By keeping your whole body thin you may also keep your feet thin and be able to wear a small shoe. Exercising the feet will not permit fat to grow on them. Bathe them often in salt water or in alcohol.

SMALL CHRISTMAS CAKES.

These small cakes, which may be made many of them several days or even weeks before Christmas, are such an addition to the holiday table as well as most acceptable in the gift baskets and boxes which we enjoy sending to our friends:

Nut Macaroons.—Beat the white of an egg until light, then add gradually while beating constantly a cup of brown sugar. Fold in a cup of pecan nuts, a fourth of a teaspoon of salt and drop from a spoon on an unheated sheet. Bake in a moderate oven until delicately browned.

Delicious little cakes of the small round crackers may be made by putting a marshmallow with a nut on top on each cracker, and baking in a hot oven until the marshmallow is melted and brown.

Kornettes.—Add three-fourths of a tablespoonful of butter to three-fourths of a cup of finely chopped popped popcorn. Beat a white of egg until stiff, add a half cup of sugar, a fourth of a teaspoon of salt, a half teaspoonful of vanilla. Combine the mixtures and drop from a teaspoon on a well-buttered baking sheet. Shape in circular form with a knife dipped in cold water. Sprinkle with chopped almonds and place a candied cherry in the center of each. Bake in a slow oven until delicately browned.

Neuremburghs.—Beat the whites of two eggs until stiff, add a half cup of powdered sugar, gradually; continue the beating, then add the yolks of the eggs well beaten, three-fourths of a cup of flour, a half teaspoonful of salt, a third of a teaspoonful of cinnamon, a tablespoonful of orange peel finely cut, the grated rind of half a lemon, an eighth of a teaspoonful of cloves. Blanch three-fourths of a cup of almonds and brown in the oven until well browned. Fold into the mixture and drop by spoonfuls on a sheet dredged with cornstarch and powdered sugar in equal proportions. Bake in a moderate oven.

Reversing the Order.

"I say, Wombat, why did you marry such a bridge fiend?" Same old foolish story, Wallaby. I married her to reform her."—Kansas City Journal.

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS

BY MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young man of 29 and have been keeping company with a young lady about two years, who I think a great deal of. But there is another girl I am in love with though I am not acquainted with her or any of her friends. Shall I stop her on the street and speak to her, or send her an invitation for some nice affair, or ask her to accompany me, or drop her a few lines and ask her to meet me? Please advise me.

WEST SIDE.

You'd better be off with the old love before you're on with the new. Ten to one the girl you know is worth a dozen of the one you don't know, but you think what you haven't got must of course be better than what you have. Many a young man has let the right girl slip away from him just because of that. The only decent way you can ask her to accompany me, or drop her a few lines and ask her to meet me? Please advise me.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I recently was introduced to a young gentleman and when parting he again expressed his delight in meeting me. What should my reply have been? (2)—Is it permissible for a club of 16-year-old girls to invite boy friends to their meetings once in a while? Please suggest a good name for our club. (3)—How should I introduce two ladies to each other? CHUMS.

(1)—You might have said "The pleasure is mutual." (2)—It would be very nice to invite the boys occasionally, but to have everything just right, invite one of the girl's mothers to chaperone the party. (3)—Introduce the younger to the older, saying to the older: "Mrs. Blank, let me have the pleasure of introducing to you Miss Dash." If they are about of an age, simply say—"Mrs. Blank, Miss Dash."

Dear Mrs. Thompson: A young lady lives near me who has a brother whose acquaintance I am anxious to make. Please tell me how I may become acquainted with him.

ANXIOUS.

"The Cup that Cheers."

It is such a rare thing to be served a cup of good tea in hotels and restaurants that moment is made if it is good, rather than if it is poor. There may be several reasons for this:

First—The tea may be a very inferior quality to begin with.

Second—The tea may be good but spoiled in making.

Third—The tea may be old and have lost its freshness, strength and flavor.

Fourth—The failure to serve a pitcher of hot water with every pot or cup of tea, so that if too strong, hot water may be added to suit the taste.

Fifth—It is rarely if ever served hot, and warm tea does not mean hot tea.

Where one has formed the "tea habit" he is much more "finicky" about the flavor of tea than the coffee drinker. Tea varies in having so many different delicate flavors; when the right one is found to suit the individual taste, there is no desire for change as is so frequently the case with the one who drinks coffee or smokes cigars; they seem to wear out the flavor and have to change their "brand" occasionally.

Some like tea from China, some from Japan, and others from Ceylon. It may be an English breakfast tea or uncolored Japan; it all rests with the taste acquired.

Some friends of mine in the West had a Chinese servant. At Christmas time he presented them with two tiny packages of tea. They had never tasted very much for this beverage, but when they drank tea made from their "gift" the husband said to his wife, "I wish you would ask John where he purchased this tea, as I could learn to like tea if it was always like this." She did so, and when John's reply came as to where it came from and the price, "Nine Materials—Butter, 1 c.; brown sugar, 2 c.; raisins, 1-2 c.; nuts, 1-2

These cakes are very delicious and may be served with cream or fruit.

Dissolve the soda in the sour milk and mix well with the mixture, then add the raisins and nuts chopped not too fine or cut in small pieces; flavor and add sufficient flour to drop (not run) from the spoon. Mix the baking powder with a little flour and beat in well. Drop by teaspoonfuls on to greased shallow pans and bake in a moderate oven, until a delicate brown. ## FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, Dec. 19, 1872.—The Visiting Committee at the School for the Blind, which was announced in yesterday's Gazette, the arrival of the legislative visiting committee and Governor Washburn for the purpose of inspecting the institution for the blind, located in this city. The gentlemen mentioned visited the institution yesterday afternoon and looked over the business documents of the school, and the board of trustees. Everything was found in proper shape. This forenoon the workshops and school rooms were visited during the ordinary, every-day exercises of the institution. At the close of this justice to an excellent repast. After dinner the committee departed and took the 2:15 train for Waupun. Human Epizooty: A disease is prevailing to a considerable extent in this city which partakes of the nature of the malady which has so generally afflicted the horses of the country. The patient is taken with violent coughing, sore throat and a discharge from the nostrils, the disposition in many cases being severe and prolonged, though not dangerous to life.

He brings hams and fruits and jams and yams and canned tomatoes, he brings home peas and beans and cheese, and sweet and sour potatoes. He's loaded down when from the town he comes, his pup behind him; "you always was old Santa Claus," his wife and kids remind him. He doesn't fool his time at pool, at billiards or at checkers; nor does he steer his way for beer or gin or other wreckers. He doesn't stop down town to have a drink with the fellows. He wants to see his house hold be a place of peace and pleasure, so to his shack he carries back things in a bushel measure. He brings home hats and patent rats to fix his daughters' tresses; he brings home boots and strong cheeroots and parasols and dresses; he brings home books and shepherds' crooks and New Orleans molasses, and pie and tart and works of art, and Brownings' "Pippa Passes." For Christmas Everybody Wants a Leakless PARKER GIFT PEN

IVE presents that people want—that everybody wants. Make up your mind this year early with a Parker Gift Pen.

There are plain Parkers, fancy Parkers, Parkers with diamonds, even Parkers set with diamonds, and pearls. Prices from $2.50, $3.00, $4.00 up, according to size and ornamentation.

Besides making handsome presents, Parker Fountain Pens please everyone because they're leakless.

Why do Parker Pens never leak or sweat your fingers? Because—

An ordinary fountain pen has a straight feed tube which carries ink to the pen point. Now some inkdrops always stay at this straight tube—even when the pen is point up in your pocket.

And when the heat of your body—38 degrees—gets to the pen, it causes air in the feed tube to expand and push ink through the feed tube to escape. This pushes those ink drops up and out around the nozzle, smearing the writing and of pen, and making your fingers when you remove the pen-cap to write.

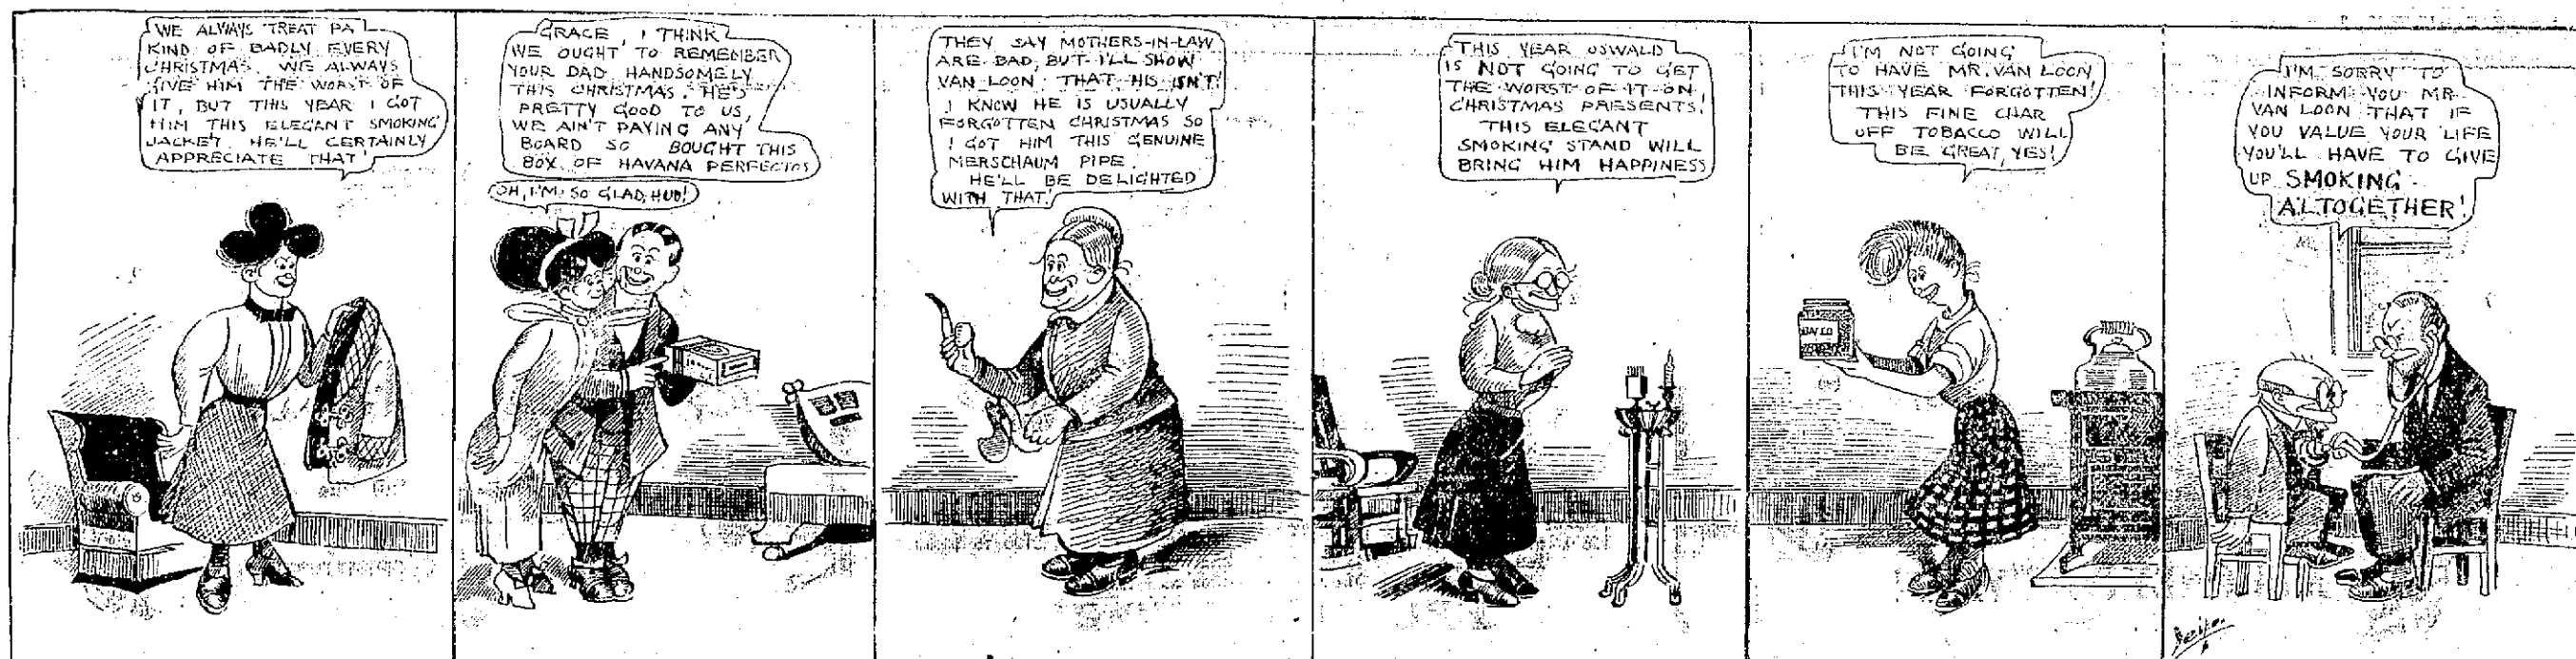

THE PARKER IS DIFFERENTLY MADE. Parker Pens write smooth. Their ink gold nibs, tipped with hardest Italian steel, never scratch. Speedy Ink Control, by regulating ink flow, absolutely prevents dripping or blotting.

The new Disappearing Clip grips tight, but slips flat out of the way when you write.

NEW PARKER JACK KNIFE SAFETY PEN. Is safe from blotting, even when upside down. Beautiful design. $2.50, $3.00, $4.00, $5.00, $6.00, $7.00, $8.00, $9.00, $10.00, $11.00, $12.00, $13.00, $14.00, $15.00, $16.00, $17.00, $18.00, $19.00, $20.00, $21.00, $22.00, $23.00, $24.00, $25.00, $26.00, $27.00, $28.00, $29.00, $30.00, $31.00, $32.00, $33.00, $34.00, $35.00, $36.00, $37.00, $38.00, $39.00, $40.00, $41.00, $42.00, $43.00, $44.00, $45.00, $46.00, $47.00, $48.00, $49.00, $50.00, $51.00, $52.00, $53.00, $54.00, $55.00, $56.00, $57.00, $58.00, $59.00, $60.00, $61.00, $62.00, $63.00, $64.00, $65.00, $66.00, $67.00, $68.00, $69.00, $70.00, $71.00, $72.00, $73.00, $74.00, $75.00, $76.00, $77.00, $78.00, $79.00, $80.00, $81.00, $82.00, $83.00, $84.00, $85.00, $86.00, $87.00, $88.00, $89.00, $90.00, $91.00, $92.00, $93.00, $94.00, $95.00, $96.00, $97.00, $98.00, $99.00, $100.00.

HIS RISE TO POWER
By HENRY RUSSELL MILLER
Author of "The Man Higher Up"
Copyright, 1911, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company

"How impertinent! I'm merely trying to verify an impression. The other night, while you were watching Warren Blake die, I got the notion that you had one. Now Warren Blake is out of the way. Hampden won't be disgraced. There's to be no scandal. Your plans to save the bank are under way. Other plans of yours are no longer in jeopardy. So it's time to think of payment. I have just come from Dunneade. He isn't a very happy man, Senator Murchell. He's oppressed by the knowledge that he has been weak. He has lost his pride, his belief in himself, his sense of absolute honesty—all he's left for short. The poor fool even thinks he is to blame for Warren Blake's shooting himself. You and I know better. We know who killed Cock Robin." Haig laughed indignantly.

"You have a strange sense of humor. Just what are you trying to insinuate?"
"I mean that we know that the man who killed Warren Blake was the man who killed Creighton, Hawkins, Deleahanty, Burns, Schneider, Larkin and Blake. And he's the fellow that created an atmosphere of dishonesty in political banks and public treasuries, made opportunities for thievery, encouraged and profited by speculation—in short, the man who devised and built the machine whose creatures and victims have paid the penalty of their crimes with suicide. Do I make myself clear?"
Murchell sat up angrily. "That isn't true. I'm not responsible if a few weaklings aren't able to resist temptation and take the easiest way out."
"It was Cain, I believe," Haig retorted, "who first pleaded that excuse."
"See here, Haig! If you have anything important to say, say it. Otherwise—"
Haig leaned over, interrupting merrily, tapping the senator's knee to emphasize his words: "I'd advise you to listen. Will you?"
"Go on."

"That's sensible," Haig resumed his easy attitude. "Let's take up Dunneade's case. His mouth is closed by his love for Katherine Hampden. The question now is, who profits most by his silence and hence will have to pay? It isn't Hampden. I think I understand the political situation pretty well. Just now, when you're trying to scramble back into power and Jerry Brent has taken their convention out of the hands of your friends of the opposition for another bank in which you politicians have had your dirty fingers to fiddle with another cashier putting a mussy little hole in his head, would be most inopportune. Also, you've put up money to cover Hampden's shortage. I've never heard you accused of doing anything for anybody without return. And since you've put up a lot of money without security, it must be because silence just now is particularly valuable to you. Now do you get the point? Are you ready to pay?"
"Haven't I paid enough?"
"Can you ever pay enough to balance what Warren Blake and John Dunneade have paid?"
"What do you want then?"
"Well, you're trying to get back into power through the convention. The general impression is that you can't beat Sherrod. But I guess differently. You're not the kind of man to go back into the scramble unless the chances for a win are pretty good. Well, nominate John Dunneade."
"The thing," exclaimed Murchell, and extreme irritation was sparkling in his preposterous eyes.
"You have thought of it as much as that, then? But why preposterous to nominate a fool, big, honest man? Measure him against Wash Jenkins or any one of your kind you choose; his character is something you haven't been able to go to the people with for many a year in this state. And his nomination would pull the teeth of dangerous Jerry Brent."
"Power," said the senator virtuously, "isn't to be taken lightly. Even if I could do it, which isn't probable, I certainly don't propose to make a joke or a fool of myself before the political public by helping a party, big-headed, impractical, romantic to a powerful of age."

"Unpractical" and "romantic"—you need a new point of view, senator. John Dunneade is the most practical man I know, because he sees true, sees evil as evil and good as good. If this state were to follow his ideal of simple, straightforward common sense honesty, political corruption would cease to exist, a vast amount of injustice would be corrected and popular government justified. You'll have to find another excuse, Senator Murchell."
"Well, then," said the senator grimly, "you may put it that I, a seeker after the valueless, don't propose to help a practical man who has rejected all honest offer of friendship and spent six years vilifying me before the people of this state."
"So that's why it's preposterous? That's the measure of your sort, is it? Fighting you, telling the truth about you, are what disqualify a man for public office. You gripe everybody, everything—life, death, tragedy, love—in the mills of your greedy ambition and you are willing to pay only the least penny you must. Blake the sui-

"Nominate John Dunneade," said, Hampden the embezzler, Dunneade the lover, are but so many pawns in the game of Murchell—can you give me the word?"
"Your vivid imagination ought to be equal to that." But the senator began to feel that he was bearing the point where patience ceased to be a virtue.
"For once it balks. Dunneade's mouth is closed. But Senator Murchell, I know as much as he." He sprang to his feet. "What's to hinder me from publishing the scandal, from telling the people that another bank has been looted by the politicians, another added to the list of Creighton, Hawkins, Deleahanty?"
"I thought we'd come to that. I'm not easily frightened, Haig. You won't do it."
Haig seated himself on the table, the homely, cadaverous features lighting up in a sardonic grin. "Now the funny part of it is, you aren't sure whether I'm bluffing or not. Let me assure you, I am not. We're a pretty triangle, each with the drop on the man in front of him. You hold over Dunneade's head the fact of Hampden's disgrace, he gets me with his friendship and I can bring you down with my knowledge of his bank business. I'd like to lose Dunneade's regard by confronting him with the necessity of prosecuting his wife's lover's father. But by the Lord! I'm not afraid to fire first. And I think you believe that."
Murchell did not answer. He was making a strong effort to control his rising irritation. But he listened intently because he did not know Haig well enough to decide whether the latter was really dangerous.
"You think my motive is lacking perhaps?" Haig inquired coolly. "Do you remember Wrenn—George Wrenn of Clarion—or have there been so many Wrenns that you can't keep track of them? Let me tell you his story. He was a preacher—not a very strong man, but a fine, big, clean hearted fellow—something like John Dunneade—who believed in his fellowmen and loved them, the kind that would sit up all night with any poor, suffering wretch or share his last dollar with those who needed it less than he did. Everybody loved him. He married a widow who had one son. He was a good husband and a perfect father to that boy. I know, because I was the boy. They had a reform warren in Clarion and sent Wrenn to the legislature. That was the year you almost failed of re-election to the senate. It cost you a million and a quarter to win, you may remember. There was a point where you needed just one vote, and your dears got after Wrenn. He held out for awhile, but—Oh, you know how it works. He was poor, there was more money in sight than he had ever heard of, and they found his price at $17,000. And he was cheap, too, comparatively. I think he must have been temporarily out of his mind, for he didn't really care for money. He went home a shame broken man. They couldn't prove it on him, but everybody knew he had taken money. They turned against him, his wife died broken hearted, and he had to leave Clarion. The money was soon spent; that kind never lasts. He went down hill fast, and finally, a miserable drunken wretch, he put a bullet through his head. I saw him do it—just as Warren Blake did it. So you can cut still another notch in your gun—eight on the list now—Creighton?"

"Quit that!"
"Good God," Haig roared, "I believe he has a conscience, after all! Can you sleep at night, Senator Murchell?" Murchell got slowly to his feet, in his eyes a light so terrible that even Haig for a moment was startled.
White heat consumed quickly. The dumb passion soon burned itself out. The rigid pose melted into one of utter weakness.
"He wouldn't take it—at my hands." The arrogant habit of a lifetime had ceased to protect.

"Dunneade? Oh, that's a problem in psychology, I think he will. In fact I know it, since I came here with full power of attorney from him. With men like Dunneade the first compromise is the crucial one. As to means, you will find him more tractable, I fancy. My own opinion is he will be a more useful man for it. He won't be very happy at first, though. I'll be saying good night."
He took a few steps toward the door, then stopped, hesitating. He turned back. His insolent, overbearing manner fell from him.
"Senator," he said quietly, "I may have overdone it. Wrenn, Blake, all those fellows aren't worth a quail. Dunneade is—"
But Murchell was not listening. He had forgotten Haig. He was watching the second birth of a young man who once had been.

Not the next day, nor the next, but on the third, the travail ended. William Murchell emerged from his brief.

mysterious retirement to place himself at the head of his clamorous troops. It has been said that the campaign which followed was the most brilliant of his career.

CHAPTER XX.
The Big Life.
ONE day John Dunneade stood before the people of his state a lonely figure, almost forgotten amid the tumult of discussion that raged over the respective merits of Sherrod and Jenkins. On the next a few heads turned questioning toward him, a few newspapers began darkly to hint that his candidacy might be more formidable than had been supposed. The exigencies of the party case, it seemed, demanded that John Dunneade must be nominated. The times required it, the people demanded it, no one else could beat Jerry Brent. To short, if these members of the press were to be believed, the party was in danger of defeat and had experienced a timely conviction of sin. Within a few days half the newspapers of the state were loudly trumpeting that Dunneade's services to his party must be rewarded; the other half laboriously denying that service had been rendered and sneeringly pointing to the late primaries in Benton county as evidence of his popular weakness.

No one suspected a prompter. The people, so insistently told that they demanded the choice of the young reformer, began to believe it. A surprising number suddenly discovered that they "had always been for Dunneade anyway," they were exceedingly proud of the fact. The thing was contagious. Gradual, but swift as the rising "Chinook," it swept over the state, a flood of enthusiasm. Part of it was genuine. Far down in their hearts, beneath the calloused crust, the moral sluggishness that hated change, lay a germinating civic consciousness implanted by the very man who had become a hero overnight. The politicians—all but a few—were astounded. Supporters of Jenkins and Sherrod alike were profoundly alarmed.
Two days before the convention the Hon. C. Washington Jenkins bowed to the storm.
"I yield," he said, "to a spontaneous demand of the people."

"Death to the Weak." "Death to the weak," is the cry of that equestrian order which exists among all the nations upon earth, and the sentence is written on hearts that are saddened by opulence or fattened by aristocracy.—Balzac.
